AT ARKANSAS STATE,
OUR STUDENTS PUSH
THE LIMITS OF LEARNING.
WE COLLABORATE WITH
NASA IN THE CLOUDS
AND DISCOVER NEW SPECIES BELOW THE SEA.

UNCOMMON OPPORTUNITIES

Arkansas State offers undergraduate students opportunities to get out of the classroom and into the field conducting research usually reserved for master's level or higher students.

WHAT DO MOSQUITOES, MALARIA AND BOB MARLEY HAVE IN COMMON?

A tiny fish parasite discovered by A-State marine biologist Paul Sikkel. The new species, Gnathia marleyi, is a small crustacean blood feeder he observed in shallow coral reefs of the Caribbean. The species is the first to be discovered in the Caribbean in more than two decades.

Paul Sikkel
Marine Biologist

This photograph of the Earth's surface, captured at an ABS record altitude, was taken by a camera onboard a high-altitude balloon launched by A-State students.

LAUNCH PAD

Professors Tillman Kennon and Ross Carroll worked, along with A-State undergraduate students, in a NASA project flying a high-altitude balloon into the path of the 2017 total solar eclipse collecting video, photographs, and scientific data. The Arkansas BalloonSAT team, which includes students, has launched and flown 56 high altitude balloons from Arkansas and Missouri in the last 12 years.

STUDENT SUBMERSION

Sikkel has maintained a productive research program by integrating undergraduate and graduate students at each step, beginning with field data collection and completing projects through the dissemination of results. Sikkel's research focuses on how environmental changes in coral reef systems impact the interaction between coral reef fishes and their parasites off the coasts of four different continents.

Rooted in Research

AN INTEGRAL PART OF ARKANSAS STATE

Each year, A-State holds its annual student research event, Create@STATE. Students are encouraged to research any topic they desire and develop creative solutions under the advisement of an A-State mentor. Grants for extended research, as well as professional careers, can be launched here! Check out the Create@STATE podcast for more information.

WHETHER YOU'RE ON CAMPUS OR OUT-AND-ABOUT IN JONESBORO, YOU'LL FIND PLENTY TO KEEP YOU ENTERTAINED.

When you live on campus, there aren't many reasons to go anywhere else. In addition to concerts and sporting events, you can work out at the Red WOLF Center, get all-you-can eat at the recently renovated "Caf," and ride to class on the PAC Path trails.

DOWNTOWN

4 SQUARE MILES >

1 One square mile at A-State serves as the heart of culture, tourism, and sports for Northeast Arkansas including: Red Wolves football at Centennial Bank Stadium, baseball at Tomlinson Stadium, concerts and more in First National Bank Arena, Bradbury Art Museum, Regional Farmers' Market, ASU Museum, Red Wolf Convention Center, and Fowler Center the premier performing arts center.

2 Irish pub? White table dining? Brunch? Music venues? Ramen shops? Student lofts? It is all in downtown Jonesboro. There is eclectic shopping from custom soaps to casual women's clothing, to the headquarters store of one of the state's prime outdoor lifestyle companies. Along with community festivals, downtown Jonesboro hosts special events for students such as the annual welcome back block party.

One of the largest urban parks in the state, Craighead Forest Park is an oasis of mountain biking and trail running. The 692-acre park includes a 60-acre lake for canoeing, kayaking and stand-up paddle boarding. You can even overnight camp in the – wait for it – Craighead Forest. The park has helped host the Jonesboro Open, which is a part of the Disc Golf Pro Tour, three times on its disc golf course.

Music City, USA or Beale Street; NFL, NHL, NBA or MLB – they are all a short day trip from Jonesboro. If not at First National Bank Arena, you can bet your favorite band will play FedEx Forum, Simmons Bank Center, Bridgestone Arena or Enterprise Center. If you really need to get away, four international airports surround Arkansas State. There is also a super-quick connection from Jonesboro Regional to St. Louis Lambert International. Need that IKEA showroom for your residence hall? All interstate an hour away in Memphis. Want to check out a Presidential Library? Two hours by four-lane to the state capital in Little Rock. Needless to say, “You can get there from here.”

IF YOU NEED A LITTLE “BEACH TIME,” THERE IS A DIRECT FLIGHT FROM JONESBORO TO DESTIN, FLORIDA.
