Dean’s Corner

So many significant things have transpired this summer and I am pleased to share those with you. Two projects involve our Disaster Preparedness Emergency Management Program. The faculty has developed two new programs in Emergency Medical Technician and Paramedic that have been approved by the Arkansas Higher Education Coordinating Council. The second involves the opportunity to build a training center for disasters. In this newsletter edition, you will find articles that discuss both of these initiatives in much more detail.

Suffice it to say however, the opportunities for education and training in emergency medicine continue to advance in our region. Our DPEM faculty have been very visionary and aggressive in their focus. This is becoming a fabulous continuum of education for those in and related to the field.

We have added many new faculty and staff to our college this fall. You will see quite a few new names and others who have left secondary to retirement or new career opportunities. In addition, I want to note and thank Dr. Rick Neeley who has stepped down as chair of Communication Disorders and resumed a full-time faculty role. Dr. Amy Shollenbarger has stepped in as interim chair.

The college continues to focus on and thread interprofessional education, multicultural, health literacy, population health, soft skills, business principles and rural health throughout its professional curriculums. The executive team paid special attention to the “culture of health” this summer, discussing potential college initiatives related to “exercise is medicine” and Healthy Active Arkansas. We also spent time on the Social Determinants of Health reviewing frameworks, epianalyses and metrics that would be of value in our teaching, scholarship and service delivery.

We have some new curricula we will be moving forward this fall—Doctorate of Nursing Practice, Nurse Anesthesia and an entry-level Masters in Athletic Training.

I am looking forward to another active and productive year. “Active” will be the operational word in keeping with the spirit of Healthy Active Arkansas. “Exercise is Medicine.”

These are expanded roles for both of these ladies. We look forward to their established leadership.

Arkansas consistently ranks as one of the most unhealthy states in the nation. Here in Jonesboro, we have the sixth highest obesity rate (37.2 percent) in the U.S. Increasing physical activity is one solution to this problem. Regular physical activity reduces the risk of certain types of cancer, cardiovascular disease and leads to higher academic performance in children and adults. As an academic institution, we strive for high academic achievements, which is why all faculty, staff, students and alumni need to be involved in the Exercise is Medicine (EIM) group.

Shawn Drake, PT, PhD, is spearheading an EIM group on the A-State campus this fall. The goal is to increase physical activity in faculty, staff, students and alumni. All students using the A-State Student Health Center will be assessed for physical activity as a vital sign—just like blood pressure and heart rate. Students that do not meet the minimum physical activity guidelines can receive a referral to an exercise professional through the Red Wolf Center. Students referred to the EIM program will receive an exercise prescription and the ability to track their progress through the EIM program. Faculty and staff have opportunities on campus to begin an exercise program through the A-State Faculty and Staff Wellness Programs. Faculty and staff that are unsure of how to start an exercise program can contact Dr. Drake at sdrake@astate.edu to schedule a consultation and receive an exercise prescription specifically tailored to the individual’s needs.

Dr. Drake started a FitBit Community called Northeast Arkansas EIM. If you are a FitBit user or plan to be a FitBit user, we want you to join our community. Any faculty, staff, student or alum cont. on p. 7

Angie first came to A-State in August of 1981 and stayed until 1999. She worked as an Instructor followed by a tenured assistant professor of Nursing. She earned her BSN from A-State in 1977, her MSN from UAMS in 1988 and her PhD in Health Studies, Nursing in 2009. When she left us she became the director of Business Development for HealthSouth in Jonesboro and then became an assistant administrator for Health South in Memphis. When she left A-State, I told her I wanted her to come back some day and she did in 2006. She has pretty much held administrative roles since that time including MSN-Adult Health coordinator, MSN program director, nurse administrator School of Nursing and associate dean College of Nursing and Health Professions.

She was hired back to A-State as an associate professor, re-tenured in 2011 and became full professor in 2015. She has been teaching in the graduate nursing program in areas like finance, leadership, policy, quality assurance, etc. She has been a college leader in Alzheimers/dementia, health literacy, interprofessional education, chronic disease and aging. She has also done exceptional work to support curriculum development toward degree programs such as the Doctorate of Nursing Practice, Certificate in Informatics, BS in Health Studies and our most recent OTA and OTD curriculums. She is very well published, is a multiple grant recipient ($250,000+) and does about everything else in scholarship you can do. Because of that, one of her college roles was our leader and resource person for college scholarship. Her services were sought by external groups for grants, contracts and other activities.

Her service includes an array of things but particularly teaching Chronic Disease Self-Management courses to the community, chairing the Graduate Council, involvement with Southern Nursing Research Society, has chaired almost every committee in the School of Nursing and served on the college Executive Council. She has involvement with the Association of Rehabilitation Nursing, National League for Nursing and Sigma Theta Tau, Eta Theta Chapter. She was the consummate mentor—for students, faculty and for individuals on our research team.

My best descriptors for Angie, beside the ones I have already mentioned, are hard working, visionary, respectful of everyone, great at troubleshooting/problem solving, an excellent confidant, tremendous at leadership and possesses the integrity, values and ethics we all aspire to. I want to especially thank her for her support of me and her tireless work on behalf of the college. I am glad she is staying in town!!

New Ultrasound Machines for Sonography Program
By Ray Winters, Chair
Medical Imaging & Radiologic Sciences

Thanks to a generous grant from the Dean, the Diagnostic Medical Sonography Program recently received four new, state-of-the-art General Electric Sonography machines. These new machines will not only produce better diagnostic images than our old machines, but will allow students and faculty to explore research opportunities they previously couldn’t. The new machines also have the capabilities to do “elastography,” which is a method of differentiating the composition of masses found during a scan.

The machines are also capable of producing both 3-D and 4-D images and are much more ergonomically designed. Faculty members Amber Wooten and Deanna Barymon are very excited about the new machines and believe this purchase places A-State at the forefront of sonographic education. “We are so excited to have these new machines. Our students and ultimately our clinical sites will be better served because of these.” says Deanna Barymon, clinical coordinator of DMS.
Updates from the Beck PRIDE Center
by Lynda Nash, Director

Employment partnerships were the focus of plans for the summer and fall of 2016. The Beck PRIDE Center for America’s Wounded Veterans (BPC) is working with local employers to facilitate employment for graduates. Two presentations have been made to the staff and social workers with the Memphis VA Health System regarding opportunities and services available to veterans in the Northeast Arkansas region. A therapeutic combat support group is offered weekly at the BPC. A support group for caregivers of military veterans will be offered in the fall of 2016. A financial planning workshop will be offered twice this fall for veterans and spouses.

A workshop in a community-education series was offered on Jul. 29. The topic was Improving Success in Addiction Treatment by Todd Clements, M.D. Participants included mental health providers and clergy in Northeast AR. The staff work with the Northeast Arkansas Veterans Action clergy group to coordinate services for veterans in the area between various providers.

Veterans continue to do well educationally. Beck PRIDE Center has supported educational opportunities for a master’s and bachelor’s level social work intern; master’s counseling intern; four VA work study students; two graduate assistants, and a fall intern from the Univ. of Arkansas Rehab Counseling Program. A second level social work intern; master’s counseling intern; four VA work study students; two graduate assistants, and a fall intern from the Univ. of Arkansas Rehab Counseling Program. A second Occupational Therapy student intern will be placed in October, 2016.

A proposal was accepted from the Middle Eastern Studies Grant for Lynda Nash, BPC director; Randall Murray, Master’s in Social Work; and David Barrera, Master’s in Counseling, to visit Israel in May. This research trip provided an opportunity to meet and interview personnel associated with military treatment programs. The Bob Shapell School of Social Work, Tel Aviv University, offers a one-year graduate certificate in Crisis and Trauma Counseling with an emphasis on military personnel. The Hebrew University in Jerusalem provides opportunities for group counseling of combat units. This program was developed as the result of one of their own graduate student’s experiences. They also visited the Beit Halochem Center in Jerusalem, which offers individual, group and treatment programs including physical therapy, art therapy and a host of programs for veterans and family members. Since all Israeli citizens serve in the military, there was frequent contact with active military throughout the country.

Beck PRIDE Center staff are involved in a veteran’s court initiative in partnership with the second Judicial District; Memphis VA system and Midsouth Health systems. Mentors for the program have been recruited from the Beck PRIDE Center and the first two graduates have successfully completed the program. Mentors have completed national certification training. Lynda Nash was invited to serve on the regional planning meeting for services to Armed Forces by the American Red Cross in Tulsa, OK in June. The A-State Student Veteran Organization was awarded a $10,000 Home Depot scholarship that will be used to update the Day Room and purchase supplies. William Crowder, BPC participant, was the grant winner of 3M Collision Repair Solutions Hire Our Heroes tool grant. He received $1,500 in tools and is eligible for another $2,500 in tools. He completed the Collision Repair and Auto Mechanics program at Marked Tree. Daniel Smith, BPC participant, placed first for Decision Making and Financial Analysis in the National Competition for Business and first in the Phi Beta Lambda State competition for business.

A Memorial Roping for Spc. Steven Tyler Redmon was held at the A-State Equine Center on Memorial Day. The proceeds were donated to the Beck PRIDE Center. Veteran’s Service Officers will be available for veterans to discuss disability claims and benefits on Aug. 29, 2016, from the Arkansas Department of Veterans Affairs (ADVA). The service day is sponsored by ADVA and BPC.

Social Work Holds Licensure Exam Preparation Seminar
By Patricia Wilkerson

To provide students with more opportunity to prepare for the license exam, the Social Work Department held their first licensure exam preparation training on July 15-16, 2016, with 15 attendees. During the seminar, Drs. Patricia Wilkerson and Patricia Walls were also taught how to conduct licensure trainings for future seminars that will be held by the department. The seminar was conducted by Dr. Sophia Dziegielewski (affectionately referred to as Dr. D), professor and associate director for Research in the School of Social Work at the University of Central Florida. She has authored numerous books and created the text and materials to help students better prepare for the exam. Dr. D is nationally known and has a remarkable record of license exam pass rates for those who attend her seminars. She is a renowned social worker and, to date, has helped more than 18,000 social workers pass the licensure exam.

2017 Grief Seminar
The 2017 Billy Joe and Betty Ann Emerson Grief Seminar will be on Tuesday, May 23, 2017, at the A-State Fowler Center. The speaker, Kenneth J. Doka, Ph.D., will discuss “Disenfranchised Grief in the 21st Century: New Problems, New Strategies.” Information will be posted on our web-site at www.astate.edu/college/conhsp and emailed to past attendees when it becomes available.
Social Work Students Intern

Four BSW students received $5000 stipends to complete nine-month internships in DCFS county offices, during the 2015-2016 academic year. There were four BSW seniors (non-stipend) and one MSW student who also completed nine-month internships in DCFS county offices.

Happy Retirement, Kathleen

By Ray Winters

In August, we said goodbye to Kathleen Lorance, administrative assistant for both Medical Imaging & Radiation Sciences and Clinical Lab Sciences. She served A-State for 14 years and now plans to enjoy having time off to relax and travel. Kathleen joined the two departments in August 2004. For 12 years, she was an integral part of all programs she served. She made significant contributions to the departments and the college during her tenure. In 2008, she represented the college on the University Web Design Committee, and in 2009, was the CNHP representative to the Internet Creation Committee. In December of 2008, she was recognized by Dean Hanrahan for her “You Are Making a Difference” for the month of December for her work on behalf of the college. In 2015 and 2016, she was nominated for the Distinguished Staff Award – The Next 100 Years and in 2015 for the Distinguished Staff Performance award. Always a student advocate, she has gone above and beyond for students when problems or issues arise. She is EXTREMELY student-friendly. Kathleen has been a “go-to person” for other administrative assistants, particularly when it comes to computer programs and website design. Ray Winters, MIRS department chair, said, “She not only does an outstanding job, but has kept us all organized and has been a right arm to me personally.” Stacy Walz, chair of Clinical Lab Sciences, said, “Kathleen was willing to take on any task or challenge I set before her. She knows the A-State system so well; she was often able to predict potential problems we might have with a decision we were about to make. She knew what I needed or wanted before I knew! I needed or wanted it! Her successor has big shoes to fill. I will personally miss Kathleen very much, both professionally and personally.” To say she will be missed is an understatement. We are grateful for all her contributions and hard work and wish her the best in her retirement!

Stacy Retires from Nursing

by Dr. Susan Hanrahan, Dean

Annette was hired in January 1982—34 years ago—wow—and she still looks so youthful. She received her BSN degree from Vanderbilt and MSN from the University of Virginia as an Adult Nurse Practitioner. She holds an advanced specialist certification in oncology and as a nurse educator, as well. She was promoted to associate professor in 2006. She came right from the University of Virginia to A-State. She has taught acute care and med/surg nursing in the BSN program and was instrumental in curriculum enhancements, expansion of class sizes and the addition of other baccalaureate nursing degree options like RN to BSN and 2nd Degree Accelerated BSN. She has directed the BSN program since 1990 and co-chaired the School of Nursing for the past year. Her scholarship has focused on advanced-practice nurses, learning, prevention and chronic disease and underserved populations. She has also done manuscript and textbook reviewer work, honors theses, grant submissions and became an Oncology Nursing Society Cancer Genetics educator while she was here. She also was a core committee member to revise and update the Standards for Oncology Nursing Education for both patient/families and advanced practice nurses. Beside doing lots of work for the Oncology Nursing Society, she held leadership roles in Sigma Theta Tau International, Eta Theta Chapter and the Arkansas Nurses Association. At the university, she completed a host of work in the School of Nursing and for the college, including serving on the Executive Council (our administration team for the college), University PRT, Faculty Senate representative, Phi Kappa Phi president, was on a number of search committees for university leadership and when we had formal Academic Program Review Committees, she served on ones for the (and this will certainly date her) then-Department of Business Administration and Economics, Department of Computer Science, Math and Physics, and the Department of Special Education and Speech Pathology. She serves on the Arkansas Spinal Cord Commission and has been on Hometown Health Improvement committees, Hospice boards and on committees within the hospital. Annette has extraordinary organizational and coordination abilities (one class of traditional BSNs is 90 students with a three-year matriculation sequence—so 270 students for just one of the BSN programs. That number will go up to 100 per class this year and could be the basis for which she is retiring). She is a stellar team member and I will certainly miss her insight and wisdom on our administrative team and

ISAACSON RETIRES FROM NURSING
by Dr. Susan Hanrahan, Dean

Julie was hired by A-State in September of 1987—a mere 29 years of service. Her BSN was from the University of Tennessee and her MSN from Vanderbilt. She has a specialty certification in adult critical care. Julie was promoted to associate professor in 2006. She spent time in a number of clinics and hospitals prior to coming to A-State. She worked as a clinical nurse specialist predominately in the areas of cardiovascular, transplant, CICU and ICU. She taught in the BSN program in her areas of specialization—critical care and emergency nursing. This also included funded research in those areas, a number of publications and presentations, served as a research consultant, manuscript and textbook reviewer, honors thesis adviser, etc.

If you didn’t know about her success in the classroom or through her scholarship, you certainly knew about her service. The list is so long I can’t capture it but let me share some of the notable pieces starting with her honors and awards—NEA Professional Business Woman honoree, Triumph of the Human Spirit Awardee, American Cancer Society Honoree, ASU Board of Trustees Faculty Award for Professional Service, Mentorship Award, Sigma Theta Tau International, Excellence in Critical Care Nursing Award, NEAR Chapter of the American Association of Critical Care Nurses, American Heart Association Honoree, Barney Smith Professor of the Year, Excellence in Nursing Education, Eta Theta Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau International, College of Nursing and Health Professions Service Award and she was the first recipient of the Chancellor’s Exemplary A-State Colleague Award. She was president of the Faculty Association and chair of the Faculty Senate for three years and also served the university in the following capacities: co-chair for HLC self study and visit, Chancellors Executive Council, University Shared Governance chair, Academic Hearing Committee chair, Comprehensive Campus Master Plan, Faculty Marshall, Cost Containment Task Force, Branding Task Force—you get the idea. She was also active in the college and in her school, serving on multiple committees.

Professional association work highlights leadership roles with Sigma Theta Tau, Eta Theta Chapter, Arkansas Nurses Association and the Northeast Arkansas Chapter of the American Association of Critical Care Nurses. In the community she was a board member for United Way, Women’s Discovery Center and Wesley Foundation, provided Katrina disaster relief, did medical mission ministry work and was often a “go-to” person for individuals on this campus and off who were experiencing life-changing medical situations.

I know from the students they don’t appreciate the high standards of Ms. Isaacson until after they have graduated and outperform graduates from other programs in the area of critical care. I know from our faculty she is a cherished mentor in the School of Nursing and a great resource, editor and critical thinker/problem solver in our college. I know from the community she has made a difference and positively impacted the lives of many. We can all hope that if we have to go to ICU, we wake up to the face of a Julie Isaacson nursing graduate.

FOURTH ANNUAL HEALTH DISPARITIES CONFERENCE

By Patricia Wilkerson

The Social Work Department, in collaboration with the College of Nursing and Health Professions, will host the Fourth Annual Health Disparities Conference on Friday, Nov 4, 2016, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., in the student union. The theme, “Bridging the Gap between Health Disparities in the Delta,” is multidisciplinary and reaches out to community service providers to participate by providing medical screenings such as diabetic, blood pressure, cholesterol and HIV/AIDS tests, as well as other professionals to provide workshops/training on various topics during the day.

Dr. Patricia Wilkerson, associate professor and Dr. Patricia Walls, associate professor, co-chair of the Social Work Department and program director, BSW program are co-chairs of the event. This year’s keynote speaker is Dr. Charlotte L. Williams, associate professor and director of the Center on Community Philanthropy at the University of Arkansas Clinton School Of Public Service. She earned her M.P.H. and Ph.D. in health policy research from the College of Public Health at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences, where she served as director of policy research and faculty training. Dr. Williams is currently serving as the principal investigator for a $750, 000 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation and a $150,000 grant from the Winthrop Rockefeller Foundation for initiatives related to race and community philanthropy.

Dr. Williams is a native of Jonesboro.

EMT AND PARAMEDIC PROGRAMS COMING TO CNHP

by Dr. Debbie Persell, Program Director

To meet the shortage of licensed Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT) and Paramedics, the Disaster Preparedness and Emergency Management Program has developed a new academic area in Emergency Medical Services. After months of preparation, we are pleased to announce that on July 29th, the Arkansas Higher Education Coordinating Board approved the EMT and Paramedic education programs for Arkansas State. This includes a Certificate of Proficiency in EMT Basic, a Technical Certificate in Paramedic and an AAS in Paramedic. The EMT program is 12 credit hours to be completed in one semester. The first cohort has been admitted to begin the fall of 2016. Students will spend 10 weeks in the classroom and lab and 4 weeks in clinical and field time.

The paramedic program is 12 months, 52 credit hours, and will begin Spring 2017. There is an A&P I with lab pre-requisite for the program, as well as EMT certification. Students will spend a bulk of their time in the lab and classroom, as well as clinical and ambulance field time. The A-State paramedic program holds a Letter of Review, which is NOT a CAAHEP accreditation status, but is a status granted by the Committee on Accreditation of Educational Programs for the Emergency Medical Services Professions that signifies a program seeking initial accreditation—demonstrated sufficient compliance with the accreditation standards through the Letter of Review Self Study Report and other documentation.

A fully equipped, state-of-the-art EMS Simulation Lab has been developed and is housed on the fourth floor of E. Smith. Highly specialized equipment will be utilized, including a one-of-a-kind ambulance simulator in Arkansas, the first in the world pre-hospital high fidelity mannequin and other equipment that will be incorporated into the laboratory skill stations for both EMT and paramedic students.

Sara Walker is the program director for the EMT and Paramedic programs. Students interested in the program can contact Sara at 870-680-8286 or email at sawalker@astate.edu.

New Disaster Training Facility

by Dr. Debbie Persell, Program Director

This summer the Regional Center for Disaster Preparedness Education signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the cities of Walnut Ridge and Imboden, Walnut Ridge Airport Commission and Lawrence County Chamber of Commerce to develop a land agreement for the purposes of developing a two-campus disaster training facility. One hundred acres will be located near Walnut Ridge Regional Airport with the other 200 acres near the city limits of Imboden. The topography strengths of each site will be capitalized to develop specific disaster training zones. Anticipated training zones across the two sites, include tornadoes, earthquakes, floods, farm emergencies, hazardous materials, urban and rural tactical training, wilderness training, search and rescue and rail accidents as well as education and research facilities. These facilities will address the need for multi-disciplinary, interdisciplinary and trans-disciplinary education and training in disaster preparedness and emergency management that allow all disaster response and emergency management professionals to train with each other in real-world disaster environments. Recognizing current priorities in emergency management, training will intentionally include planning for and responding to vulnerable populations during disasters such as children, the elderly and the disabled.

Government, non-government, for-profit and not-for-profit agencies will have the opportunity to request training, education or use of the facilities. Current students at Arkansas State University and College of Nursing and Health Professions will have many opportunities to utilize these facilities in their course work. Alumni of the university and college will be among those whose agencies or organizations benefit from or participate in the training activities.

The end of July, 2016 saw the first training, at the Walnut Ridge location, FARMEDIC. The timeline for development of the training zones is dependent on acquiring funding through grants and donors. An Advisory Board, with local, state and national experts, will provide guidance in prioritizing the zone development, education and training.
