

Scott Hartley Bio

Scott Hartley is a venture capitalist and best-selling author of The Fuzzy and the Techie: Why the Liberal Arts Will Rule the Digital World (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, 2017), a Financial Times business book of the month, and finalist for the Financial Times and McKinsey & Company's Bracken Bower Prize for an author under 35. Prior to venture capital, Scott worked at Google, Facebook, Harvard's Berkman Center for Internet & Society, and the White House as a Presidential Innovation Fellow. He holds a BA from Stanford University, an MBA and MA from Columbia University.