

About A-State

Arkansas State University developed from an agricultural school founded on April 1, 1909 by Act 100 of the 37th Arkansas General Assembly. It was created as one of four Arkansas high schools to teach agriculture, horticulture, and the art of textile manufacturing. Today, the university grants bachelor's, master's, specialist's, and doctoral degrees through its various colleges. As a Carnegie Research 2 national university, Arkansas State is building on its first hundred years and looking to the future. More information is available at www.AState.edu.

The University's revenues have remained flat over the last three years, with the exception of the CARES funding received during FY 2020. Auxiliary enterprises experienced a decrease this year related to COVID, as many students left campus during the Spring term. Investment income also decreased as interest rates lowered with the economic downturn.

The university's expenses have been relatively steady in most categories. A-State saw an increase in personal services related to the minimum wage increase in the state of Arkansas. Supplies and services increased during FY 2020, primarily related to CARES act spending and construction projects.

Net Position

Net position for A-State has increased 9.9% from FY 2018 to FY 2020. Assets have increased slightly, while liabilities have increased at a faster rate. In addition, the University has been working diligently to increase reserve balances so that we are prepared for the future.

Looking Ahead

Discover 2025 Strategic Plan

A-State's new five-year strategic plan, "Discover 2025," was approved by the ASU System Board of Trustees in December 2020. The plan features five statements covering student success, teaching and learning, research and creative activities, community engagement and campus climate. Faculty, staff, and students have been involved at each stage of the process.

Discover 2025 identifies specific progress indicators and projects at the university level. Chancellor Kelly Damphousse stated, "I'm excited to see how each division, college and department at Arkansas State will translate our broad pillars into goals and objectives at their level. This is how Discover 2025 has impact across our entire campus community."

Future Challenges

The current economic climate across the United States and the world will continue to challenge A-State and other universities. Enrollment is expected to be a continuing concern, as the high school student population decreases over the next few years. State funding is expected to remain flat, although the state of Arkansas has been fortunate to see steady tax collection rates despite the circumstances of the COVID-19 pandemic.

A-State continues to seek out ways to improve our financial situation and enrollment strategies. Our partnership with the NYIT College of Osteopathic Medicine has brought many new students to campus, and the A-State Campus Queretaro continues to grow. We look forward to seeing what the future brings, as well as seeing the results of the strategic plan.
